An online workshop on Adobe Photoshop was conducted with the primary objective of assisting individuals in expressing their thoughts, opinions, and ideas through digital art, fostering creativity and productivity amid the Covid-19 pandemic. Utilizing the Google Meet platform, the organizers provided guidance on fundamental Photoshop techniques, enabling participants to apply these skills in creating digital posters. In the initial workshop session, participants were guided through the creation of two posters, introducing them to concepts such as masking, adjustment layers, and the utilization of various tools like gradients and brushes. The second session extended support to participants in crafting four additional posters, exploring concepts related to cartoon portraits, neon graphics, and 2D flat art designs. To ensure effective communication and improvement, participants were encouraged to fill out feedback forms at the conclusion of each session. This approach aimed to facilitate a healthy exchange of ideas and opinions, contributing to the overall success of the workshop.

	Prerika Chauhan, a first-year student from the NSS unit at IIIT Sector-62, participated in a medical camp organized by the multidisciplinary NGO, Helping Others. The camp aimed to provide medical assistance to children and individuals in need while also raising awareness about the harmful effects of plastic pollution. Helping Others is committed to distributing free medicine, medical equipment, and sanitary pads under the supervision of qualified doctors to those who require assistance. The camp provided basic medications for conditions such as diabetes, blood pressure, and vitamins, as well as ointments like Diclofenac, Luliconazole, and Beclomethasone. The NGO has also undertaken initiatives in the past, such as promoting waste segregation to support environmental conservation. To further their efforts in combating plastic pollution, a successful drive was launched to collect plastic waste. Over 50 kilograms of plastic waste were gathered and handed over to IPCA for recycling purposes. IPCA informed the team that the plastic waste could be recycled by mixing it with bitumen or industrial ash to construct roads. The drive garnered participation from over 50 individuals, with enthusiastic residents sharing their support for the initiative. Moving forward, the team plans to organize the waste collection drive regularly, ensuring its sustainability and addressing logistical considerations.

HEALTH HYGIENE FOR ALL

“Germs भगाएंगे हर बार जब Handwash करोगे बार बार।”

It is very important to first define hand washing before taking a plunge into its importance. Hand-washing or hand hygiene is a general term, which refers to every action that involves hand cleansing.

Hand washing is the fundamental and most basic step towards hygiene. procedure aimed to achieve disease control and prevent spread of microbial infection. The procedure involves thorough cleansing of one's hands with water, soap water or alcoholic gel sanitizers.

Importance of hand washing can be seen through various factors: Eliminate all dirt, health hygiene, prevents germs entering inside the body, avoid germs spread through handshake. All these factors lead to lesser requirement of medicines and most essentially, living a healthy, fit and happy life.

The conclusion can be penned by saying “Your life is in your hands, so always wash your hands”. The incidents of transmitting infectious disease can be minimized by ensuring that hands are washed after using the restroom, before and after eating, when hands are visibly dirty or contaminated, after contact with animals or other person's intact skin, after contact with body fluids, after contact with inanimate objects and the list is not redundant by any means. A major way to reduce the incidents of transmitting infections is to think of frequent hand washing, not to be optional but as a rule. To protect your health, it is recommended you wash your hands as often as necessary.

	A NSS volunteer named Prerika Chauhan, who is a member of the NSS unit at IIIT Sector-62, visited the NGO Helping Others to provide medical assistance to those in need. Helping Others NGO collaborated with NSS IIIT with the objective of empowering women by teaching self-defense tactics. Sensei Bhupinder Singh, a black belt holder from Japan, demonstrated various techniques that were easy to remember. He emphasized that certain areas of a man's body, such as the face (nose, eyes, and ears), neck, and groin region, are particularly vulnerable, and women can defend themselves by targeting these weak spots using their palm, elbow, or knee. Various scenarios were discussed, with the overarching lesson being that individuals should never perceive themselves as weak and should always fight back in such situations. The event concluded with the distribution of sanitary pads.

	Prerika Chauhan, a second-year member of the NSS unit at IIIT Sector-62, participated in an activity at the NGO Helping Others aimed at providing medical assistance to those in need. The activity involved sorting medicines into three categories: Expired medicines, Donation medicines, and In-stock medicines. At Helping Others, a total of 40 expired medicines, 19 donation medicines, and 58 in-stock medicines were sorted. Medicines expiring in the year 2020 were either returned to the pharmacy or disposed of properly. Some medicines expiring in January, February, and March 2021 were earmarked for donation to a nearby gurudwara. Medicines expiring after April 2021 were sorted and arranged, with the hope that medical camps would resume from April 2021 onwards.

	In an effort to enhance the well-being of women's mental health, a Webinar on Women's Mental Health was meticulously organized to coincide with International Women's Day. The event addressed the unique challenges posed by the pre-COVID era and the subsequent shift in realities, such as remote work, temporary unemployment, home-schooling responsibilities, and the absence of physical contact with family, friends, and colleagues. These adjustments, although necessary, required time for adaptation. The webinar shed light on the struggle's women faced, particularly in light of the pandemic's impact on daily life. The fear of contracting the virus, coupled with concerns for the well-being of vulnerable loved ones, added an extra layer of difficulty. Managing these stressors proved to be challenging for everyone, but particularly for women, and even more so for those dealing with mental health conditions.

	In her second year at IIIT Sector-62, Prerika Chauhan, a dedicated member of the NSS unit, undertook a meaningful initiative by visiting the NGO "HELPING OTHERS" to extend assistance to those in need of medical support. The outreach program included the monthly distribution of sanitary pads, as well as the provision of medicines catering to chronic conditions such as Diabetes, Blood Pressure, and Immunity Boosters. During this outreach effort, a comprehensive database for medicines was established. This involved an extensive 8-day process to gather detailed information, including expiration dates, quantities, generic names, and substitutes. This information, crucial for the NGO's operations, was meticulously recorded by hand. A separate inventory was created to distinguish between expired medicines and those currently in stock. Additionally, a record of the quantity of medicines distributed to patients over the past four months was compiled. Recognizing the urgency of certain medicines that were out of stock, a specific list was prepared and promptly ordered.

	“A nation that destroys its soils destroys itself” As part of the Earth Day celebrations, the National Service Scheme at Jaypee Institute of Information Technology in Noida organized a student webinar featuring Ishita Pandey, a 4th-year Biotechnology student, Ishsirjan Kaur Chandok, a 3rd-year Biotechnology student, and Prerika Chauhan, a 2nd-year Biotechnology student, all under the guidance of Dr. Swati Sharma. Earth Day stands as the largest civic and secular observance globally, involving contributions from 192 countries each year. The theme for this year's Earth Day, "Restore Our Earth," emphasizes natural processes and emerging green technologies to revive the world's ecosystems. This theme challenges the notion that mitigation or adaptation alone are the sole solutions to address climate change. Interestingly, recent scientific studies have highlighted the environmental benefits resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic, portraying it as a silver lining in the dark cloud. The webinar commenced with insightful speeches from the panelists, followed by an engaging question and answer session. Deodarshan Dutta and Ranja Chakraborty added poetic elements to the event with their strong-oriented poems. The interactive session with the audience marked the conclusion of the webinar, proving to be a fruitful and stimulating discussion on Earth Day and environmental concerns.

An event was organised to celebrate The International Day of Yoga. The event aimed at creating awareness about Yoga which is a physical, mental and spiritual practice originated in India. The International Day of Yoga has been celebrated annually on 21 June since 2015. Yoga is an invaluable gift of India's ancient tradition. It embodies unity of mind and body; thought and action; restraint and fulfillment; harmony between man and nature, a holistic approach to health and well-being. It is not about exercise but to discover the sense of oneness with yourself, the world and the nature. By changing our lifestyle and creating consciousness, it can help in well-being.
